

I am appalled at Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. If this is allowed, our country will have sunk to new lows in providing balanced information to the electorate. The policies of the world's strongest nation are determined by elected officials, and their selection is based, of course, on the perceptions of the electorate. Attempts to sway them to one candidate or another using heavily biased information may be deemed acceptable by some when it fits within that candidate's campaign, but it is totally unacceptable when public assets, such as airwaves, are the medium.

Sinclair's blatant partisan ploy is an amazing example of why we need better regulation of media companies. Please help serve your constituency by instituting and enforcing common-sense rules such as one which would protect the public's right to balanced political information over public airwaves.

Thank you.
